WARRANT ISSUED FOR BRADY

A warrant was sworn out against Charley Brady this morning charging him with grabbing $25 in bills from Frank Meadors and appropriating it to his own use. The affair took place Wednesday afternoon at Kile's garage.

According to Mr. Meadors, the facts are about as follows: Alten Kile was settling his bill with the oil company, paying Mr. Meadors partly in money and partly in checks. When he first entered the garage, Brady who seemed to be considerably under the influence of liquor, shook hands with him, delivering himself of all sorts of expressions of friendship. When Kile began counting out the greenbacks, Brady grabbed the bills and handed them around the crowd in a laughing way. Then everything was returned to Meadors, who laid the pile of bills on the counter. Brady made another grab catching up three fives and a ten, remarking that they were counterfeit, any way. Meadors, thinking that the whole thing was only a joke, said nothing for a few minutes, and when ready to leave asked Brady for his money. He still acted like he was playing a joke and made no sign of turning the money over, and paid no attention to Meador's repeated request that he turn the money back. Finally Brady climbed in to an auto in which Kile was starting off and went down the street with him. Later Meadors met him on the street and again demanded his money. Brady became very abusive and swore that he knew nothing about the money and could whip any man who said he had it.

Thinking that perhaps when he sobered up he might return the money, Meadors waited all day yesterday, but no settlement was forthcoming, and Brady left on the south bound Frisco, buying a ticket to Mill Creek. This morning Meadors swore out a warrant for his arrest, and it is likely that he will be located and brought back.

LATER—Brady was captured at Mill Creek today and brought in on the 4 o'clock train by Constable W. B. Adair.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Cole entertained a crowd of young people in honor of their daughter, Miss Blanch's eighteenth birthday. The home was beautifully decorated in ferns and roses, the guests were entertained with music and games. Those present were present were Misses Mary and Bessie Duke, Lena West, Icie Dodds, Virgie Smith, Annie Willburn, Sue and Lurline Chisler. Messrs Charlie and Earl Tenley, Charlie Deviers, Ernest Cassiday, Ben Wade Eugene Edsall, Bostic Roddie, Percy Barton. After a delightful evening spent a delicious ice course was served. The guests then departed wishing Miss Blanch many more happy birthdays.

THE TENT MEETING 8TH AND OAK AVENUE

The tent meetings have been suspended for a few days but will begin again tonight.

We are expecting a large crowd if the rain does not prevent and hope to meet all our friends again at 8:15.

The subject tonight will be taken from 2 Tim. 2:15.

STARR AND DAVIS WILL LEAVE STATE

Muskogee, Okla., Aug. 4.—Pony Starr and Joe Davis will leave the state of Oklahoma. Thus ends a bitter feud in the southern part of Muskogee county, covering a score of years and costing many lives, being one of the bloodiest chapters that has been written in the more recent history of the Indian country. Starr and Davis afraid of being assassinated if they return to their ranches near Porum, have purchased a ranch seventy-five miles west of Phoenix, Ariz., and will there begin life all over again. And a sigh of relief goes up from the southern part of the county and bordering portions of McIntosh and Haskell counties, for the presence of Davis and Starr meant a constant menace of bloodshed.

Starr and Davis were the central figures in the most spectacular attempt ever made in Oklahoma to kill or drive out two men from any community. Last May, following tragic scenes in the community, thirty masked and armed men, wearing mother h Hubbard dresses and mounted on good horses, rode at headlong speed up to the Pony Starr home in the outskirts of the town of Porum, and commenced to fire on Starr and Davis, who were sitting on the porch. This mob had organized at the home of a member of the anti-Davis faction for the express purpose of "getting" Starr and Davis. But they did not get them. Instead, three members of the mob were killed outright by the superior marksmanship of Starr and Davis and half a dozen more wounded and carried from the scene by their companions of the mob, who fled headlong. It was at this fight that the wife of Pony Starr proved herself a heroine. She loaded winchesters while her husband and Davis shot them. She got eight bullet holes through her dress, but not a scratch of a wound. During the fight she ran from the house to the barn amid a rain of bullets saddled two horses and led them out, and on these Starr and Davis subsequently escaped. While she was getting the horses she had an encounter with one member of the mob, who fired four times at her with a sixshooter and then threw the weapon at her. She grabbed it up and fired the two remaining shots at the fleeing man, and it is said he was one of the dead when the battle was over.

This was the culminating tragedy of the Davis-Alford feud.

A. T. Gurd of Tulsa, field man for the Crosbie oil people, returned home this morning. He stated that he had no idea just when drilling operations will begin in the leases of the company in Pontotoc county.

CHANGES IN FACULTY OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

This morning Supt. Robison received the resignation of Prof. Ben McCurrie, principal of the South school. He gave as his reason the fact that he has a much better paying position traveling. As it is only a month until the opening of the school term, it may be a trifle hard to secure the services of a competent man without considerable difficulty, most teachers having already signed contracts for next year. Miss Vera Grant and Nora Deal have been elected to fill the vacancies caused by the resignations of Misses Janie Smith and Lula Deacon. There will be nine new teachers in the public school faculty next term, a fact that will make the superintendent's position a very difficult one. The low salaries paid by the Ada schools makes it hard to hold teachers.

CRUCE WILL NOT CALL SPECIAL SESSION

Oklahoma City, Ok., Aug. 4.—Governor Cruce received telegraph advices from Washington that the apportionment bill had passed in the senate and Oklahoma would receive three additional congressmen.

"Will you call a special session of the legislature to redistrict the state," the governor was asked.

"I have said all the time," replied Governor Cruce, "there would be no extra session unless some condition approximating an emergency arose to occasion it. As I understand the apportionment bill, it provides that where a state has not redistricted the additional members shall be elected from the state at large. Since this will give Oklahoma her increase without the formality of redistricting. I do not regard the situation in the emergency class. There is always a demand for an extra session for two years without a break and within two weeks after it adjourned some one would present a reason why an extra session should be held."

Under the present condition of affairs, Governor Cruce has expressed himself as believing the cost of an extra session would be too great a burden upon the tax-payers.

POSTOFFICE INSTALLS CANCELLING MACHINE

The force at the postoffice is having an interesting time today with the cancelling machine received yesterday afternoon. This valuable aid works with a crank, and if a postal clerk happens to be a trifle tired, he can sit down, turn the crank with one hand and feed letters into the contraption with the other hand and turn out envelopes postmarked and with stamps cancelled at the rate of about 200 per minute.

When the News man called around to see the machine, the boys were taking turns at the letter box, grabbing everything shoved in from the outside, and then running to the machine with it. There seemed to be a keen rivalry about who should run the new plaything, and pitched nickels to see whose turn it was to play next. However, Jim Hounshell insists that the machine is his by right of discovery, and when the newness of the situation wears off, he will likely be the chief operator.

At all vents the concern will prove extremely valuable as a time saver when it comes to handling the mails.

JUDGE MCKEEL RETURNS FROM FARM INSPECTION

Judge McKeel states that his farms, in common with others, throughout a broad section in the southwest shows a corn failure, the first one since his 15 years residence in this section; but says Judge McKeel, "The cotton outlook is very favorable. I walked over 400 acres of crops today on my places and never saw the sign or vestage of a boll worn."

TEXAS PANHANDLE IS NO PARADISE

Zy Bach, Texas.—Well here we are from Hemphill county. As I see so many writing to the paper telling of all the good things of their country, I'll try to tell some of the fine times we have out here in Hemphill county. I guess if there were enough people here to have church we would have some where to go, too, but as there is nobody living here it's a very dull place. The hair of the few people who do live here grows so close to their heads that they are all afraid to swap dollars. We only have to go 25 miles to the post-office but we are always glad when we get the Ada Weekly News for it's like getting a letter from home. This is a very dry country. I have been here three months and it has only rained twice since I come. All those who haven't seen this country needn't want to see it. They can just look straight up and see as much as they would if they was here, for there is not a tree or anything in sight but grass burs and prairie dogs and vinegar roans and a few rattle snakes. Now I don't think any one would care to come away out here and spend a lonely life among such things. We have killed as high as three vinegar roans in the house before breakfast.

Well, I guess this is all you care to hear about Hemphill county at present so I'll cut this out and tell you more next time.

Truly yours,
HOMESICK.

WOOLEY PUT UNDER PEACE POND OF $750

On conclusion of the trial of Jim Wooley of Moller, whom J. D. Clutts and others petitioned to be put under a peace bond, Justice Brown announced that he considered that enough evidence had been brought out to warrant his being placed under such a bond, and issued his order accordingly. The amount was fixed at $750, which he readily made. In addition to that the costs were taxed against him, and that item footed up $30.90.

Today Wooley phoned Justice Brown that the chief prosecuting witness, taking advantage of the fact that being under a peace bond and thereby prevented from taking steps to defend himself, was following him about using very abusive language and making threats. Judge Brown advised him to have the fellow arrested at once and assured Wooley that so far as lies in his power, he will see that no advantage is taken of him.

The new apportionment bill has at last passed the senate. As it was adopted by the house early in the session all that now remains to make it a law is president Taft's signature.
The measure comes at a very opportune time, for the democrats. The party is now in control of several doubtful states, and when properly directed, will give the republicans a lot of trouble in carrying the usual number of congressional districts. In Oklahoma the situation will be keenly interesting. Much pressure will be brought to bear on Gov. Cruce by aspirants for congressional honors to call a special session of the legislature, but in view of the fact that such a course would mean a general row among ambitious members of the legislature, it is entirely possible that in the interest of harmony the governor will refuse to call them together, leaving the districts as they are at present and the three additional members

The matter of carving out new dis-

APPORTIONMENT BILL

PASSES U. S. SENATE

Washington, Aug. 3.—Without a division the Senate today passed the Congressional reapportionment bill increasing the membership of the house from the present figure of 391 to 433, thus insuring that no State will lose any of its present representation in the lower branch because of its stationary population or its small gain in population during the last decade while many States will secure increased representation. Texas will gain two members.

Two amendments offered to the bill by Senator Burton of Ohio were adopted by the Senate. The bill in consequence must now go to conference for the purpose of adjusting the differences between the measure as it came from the House and as it passed the Senate. The first of the Burton amendments aimed at preventing gerrymandering, provides that States entitled under the bill to increase representation shall not be re-distributed by their Legislatures, but according to the law of the States, and that the districts shall be composed of contiguous and compact territory and contain as nearly as practicable an equal number of inhabitants." The vote on this amendment was 39 to 28. The second Burton amendment, adopted without division, provides that "candidates for Representative or Representatives to be elected at large at any State shall be nominated in the same manner as candidates for Governor unless otherwise provided by the laws of the State.

Amendments proposed by Senator Root to retain the present House membership of 391 and by Senator McCumber to increase it only to 405 were defeated on roll calls. It is expected that the House will accept in conference the Burton amendments, and that the bill will be sent to the President promptly and signed by him.

It has been estimated that the increase in the House membership by forty-two will cost the country more than $500,000 annually. The annual fixed charges for maintaining the House of Representatives will in future be lifted by $400,000 on account of members' salaries.
The salaries of their clerks, their mileage and their stationery accounts. Of this total the annual $7,500 salaries of forty-two members accounts for $315,000, the salaries of their clerks $63,000, their mileage for about $16,000 and stationery for about $6,000. The average mileage paid members in this Congress is about $400 each.

But the annual cost of the House will be increased in other indirect ways by the presence of forty-two additional members. It has for years been a custom to allow each member to put through a certain number of private pension bills for the benefit of old soldier constituents. Then each member usually comes in for a slice of the public building and thriver and harbor "pork" distributed at least once each Congress. It is safe to say that each new member in this way will pull off at least $5,000 a year in appropriations that otherwise would not be made. For forty-two members this will amount to $210-000 a year, swelling the probable total additional cost of the House with its increased membership of over $600,000 a year.

CHAPTER XII. Mrs. Blazes attempts to escape with the aid of the sheets as a rope and in the act of descending when the voice of the General is heard. The Count, not hearing him, is still standing by the window when the General and Mr.
Medders seize him. They mistake him for a burglar. The hat for Mrs. Blazes arrives and Harry claims it was he who ordered it and that it was for his sister.
Mr. Medders and the General desire to screamed, and would have climbed the ladder had not the count caught her arm and restrained her.

General Blazes had not found her at home, and had returned to hold counsel with Harry as to the best way to locate her. And now he found her in the company of the count, in Harry's lawn, with a ladder leading to a window in Harry's house.

"Ah!" he shouted.
"Merciful heavens! My husband!"
she wailed.

"And he only buries nodding of dem but dear hats!" the count reflected, keeping Mrs. Blazes between him and the general.

"So!" the general roared, confronting her. "This has been your plan, has it?" He turned on the count vin-dictively. "Trying to inveigle my wife to climb into that house!"

"My dear, you are wrong!" Mrs.
Blazes wept. "Listen a moment, and I can explain."

"Wrong? Explain? Woman, I see it all now! You have planned an elopement with this—this pretzel!" "Bretzel! Ach Gott! Und I must stand dis!" the count fumed.

"What?" Mrs. Blazes demanded. "I elope with that?"
She pointed a scornful finger at the count.

"Don't try to palaver me!" the general shouted.

All this noise and shouting of course was heard by those in the house, and first Harry came running out, followed by Lucy and her father.

"What in the world is happening?"
Harry asked, rushing up to the excited trio.

"I have trapped this wretch!" General Blazes yelled, indicating the count with a gesture of his clenched fist.

Harry, helpless, looked from one to the other. Mrs. Blazes, desperate, glanced at him and said:

"Mr. Swifton can explain. I have nothing more to say."

She assumed an air of supreme indifference to whatever fate might hold in abeyance for her.

"Well, Harry," the general said, "if it's up to you, tell me how this happened."

"Tell you how what happened?"
Harry asked, dazedly.

"How does it happen that I find my wife trying to climb into your house, assisted by this—noodle."

"Noodle! Gott in Himmel! I forget myself yet!" the count grieved between his teeth.

"Oh! What? Trying to climb into my house?" Harry repeated, brushing his hand over his brow. "Why—why—it must have been some kind of a joke, general. Yes—surely it was some kind of a joke."

"Joke!" the general blurted out.

"But why should she want to get into thy house, Harry?" Lucy asked, with a bit of mischievousness, for now she knew the whole story.

"Yes!" the general barked, turning to his wife. "Why should you want to get into his house?"

Mrs. Blazes saw light ahead.

"My dear, if you will only calm
"I will tell you everything. I know you will think I am a foolish woman—but, darling, I have been jealous of you."

"Jealous of me?" said her liege lord.
"Forgive me!" she pleaded. "But when I heard those reports about you, I—"

"Reports? What reports?"
"That you were infatuated with a milliner—Mlle. Daphne."

"I? I infatuated with a milliner?" the general asked, with a look of terribly injured innocence. "I? Ridiculous!"

"And I saw her enter this house this afternoon," Mrs. Blazes continued, "and then I heard that you were here—and oh, darling, forgive me!— I came to spy on you!"

"Perfectly amazing!" Harry said to himself. "I'm in the primary class, compared to her."

"Why," the general said. "My own little pet!" He took his wife into his arms. "I—I forgive you! I want you to forgive me. The idea of my giving you even a moment's unhappiness of that kind!"

"Take me home!" pleaded Mrs.
Blazes, from the shelter of his shoulder.

The twain, reunited, went slowly down the walk and into the street.

Mr. Medders observed that Harry and Lucy looked as though they had something to say to each other, and said to the count:

"The young man whom they call Pigeon is sitting in the summer house with Carolyn, and Cousin Socrates is again in the attic writing a sonnet.
Will thou come in with me and see if these can find a cigar?"

"I thank you, from my heart," the count replied. "But I have some writing to do—and if you excuse me, I go down to der hotel now."

"Then I will say farewell, until we meet again," Medders observed, shaking the count's hand and returning to the house.

Count von Fitz stood before Harry and Lucy a moment.

"I want to say choost diss," he spoke. "I want to say 'Bless you, my children!' Und I can't make a present of a hat, but if you will honor me, Mr. Swifton, by allowing Miss Lucy to accept a little token of my good wishes, I will giff her diss."

He slipped his fingers into his pocket and produced a little case, which he opened and then took out a ring—not such a ring as either of the ones he had recovered—but a beautiful cluster of diamonds surrounding a ruby.

"Diss," he said, "is a ring I was keeping to giff to der most beautiful, der sweetest, der truest girl I shouldt find in America. I have found her—and now I lose her, because you found her, Mr. Swifton."

He dropped the ring into Lucy's hand, and was gone.

Harry led Lucy to a seat.

"Now," he said, "I'm ready to explain."

"Nay," Lucy said, happily. "Thee need not explain now, Harry, dear. I know all these would tell me of that.
Tell me something else."

And he told her.

THE END.

Sweet Pea Not Royal Choice.

In vain did gardeners and horticulturists in England try to push the claims of the sweet pea as a coronation flower. Queen Mary has decided that the pink carnation is the blossom she will carry.

The Windsor, which is a deep pink, is the carnation she particularly favors; the Lawson, a cerise carnation; the Enchantress, which is pale pink, and the Mrs. Joffie, which is salmon pink, will also be fashionable during the season. The Worshipful Company of Gardeners have begged to be allowed to present the coronation bou-quet and the queen has agreed to accept it from them, so they will keep the rarest and most perfect Windsor carnations obtainable for the royal bouquet.

abftv1fh-drdlurdldouoouo
One of her reasons for preferring the carnation to the sweet pea as the flower to be used is that the weather will probably be very warm at the time of the coronation and the sweet pea fades very easily, while the carnation does not droop in the heat.

An Eye to Business.

"John," said the butter dealer, "always put in a couple of sheets of paper when you weigh. Customers will think you neat and cleanly in your business. They don't like to have their butter slopped onto a scale that, for all they know, has never been washed. And, besides, there's a good profit in buying paper at three cents per pound and selling it for 18 cents."

Classified Advertising

Divides this Paper's Readers Into Dif- ferent Groups

One group will read all of the Situations Wanted

A second group of readers will read all of the Fur-

The Greatest Social Force.

The middle classes are the preponderant social force of today in republics as well as in monarchies, in Europe as in America. Everything is everywhere subordinated to the necessity of satisfying them as speedily and as thoroughly as possible.—Ferrerio, in Paris Figaro.

PASTIME.

Notice to the Citizens of Ada.

On the 25th day of January, 1910, the Council of the City of Ada, among other things, passed an ordinance requiring that every building within the sewer district where main or lateral sewers are provided for within 300 feet shall be connected therewith within ninety days after the completion and acceptance of such main or lateral in the street or alley abutting upon any lot occupied by a building.

Now, on account of the fact that the water supply of the City of Ada has been very limited for quite a lengthy period of time, no effort has been made to enforce said ordinance, but as we now have an abundance of water, all parties living in said City of Ada, are hereby notified that they must at the earliest practical time connect with such sewers as required by said ordinance.

The health of the city demands that you give this matter your prompt attention, and let there be no delay in attending to same.

Respectfully submitted,
S. E. CHAPMAN,
Mayor of the City of Ada

TWELFTH STREET REVIVAL MEETING

The revival services being conducted by Evangelist F. L. Young for the Church of Christ at the tent near the City Hall continues to be very interesting to all lovers of Divine Truths.

The sermon last night on "Walking by Faith" was delivered in an earnest, forceful manner, showing that to walk by faith one must walk as God directs. And that God has ever blessed those who walk in His commandments. You are invited to come out tonight and hear the sermon on "Heart Felt Religion."

B. H. FRICK AND MISS HATTIE ADAMS MARRIED

This morning B. H. Frick, manager of the ice factory, who was supposed to have gone to Salisaw on business a few days ago, appeared among his friends all togged out and with an inexhaustible supply of Tom Moores, which he began passing right and left. On being pinned down he admitted that he might possibly have gone a little further north than Salisaw and furthermore, that perhaps he did not feel as lonely as when he left. He gave the News reporter the dodge until after 2 o'clock, and when finally cornered, he proudly declared that he was the happy possessor of the finest bride that ever happened.

In fact, on August 2 he was married to Miss Hattie Adams at the home of the bride's parents in Chetoka, Kansas. The happy pair arrived at Ada on the southbound Katy last night and are now at the Harris hotel.

The bride was employed in the millinery department of the Grand Leader for two years, during which time she became acquainted with most of the citizens of Ada, and her circle of friends embrace all who knew her. Attractive and highly accomplished, it is not to be wondered at that Mr. Frick was at once ready to begin a long and patient siege for her heart. He is to be congratulated on his final success.

The writer met Mr. Frick when he first became a citizen of Ada, and has found him to be a man of sterling worth and character. He is a man of quiet disposition and one who sticks strictly to his own business, and has made a success as a business man. He is worthy of the love of the bride he has won, and the News joins their other friends in wishing them a happy life.

A TENNESSEE WOMAN PROTESTS

Oklahoma City, Ok., Aug. 4.—A story appearing in a Nashville newspaper under the date of Wetumka, Ok., regarding the "stalking of turtles" near a stream by Indians has aroused the indignation of a lady residing in that city, and she has written to Gov. Cruce.

The story in question stated that among the many methods of producing rain in Oklahoma, Creek Indians had employed one of the oldest traditions known to the clans, that of staking

DECISION AFFECTS TAX SALE TITLES

Guthrie, Ok., Aug. 4.—Under the constitutional provisions the legislature must provide for levying a tax annually to defray the expenses of the state government. This is what the legislature did not do, according to Federal Judge John H. Cotteral's decision yesterday, in enacting the revenue law of April 17, 1908, and it was for that reason that he held there was no legal levy of state taxes for the year ending June 30, 1909.

The state board of equalization, declared Judge Cotteral, clearly derived no authority from the act of April 17, 1908, to consider the expenses of the state government for the year ending June 30, 1909, or to fix the rate of taxation upon the basis of such expenses. Nothing in the 1908 act refers to taxes for the fiscal year ending in 1909. Perhaps the drafters of the law intended that it should provide for such taxes, but nothing in the law so indicated. It was pleaded by attorneys for the state in these cases that the old Oklahoma Territorial revenue law would fill in for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1909, but Judge Cotteral held the 1908 act good as applying to all state taxes prior to June 30 of that year, and therefore he held also that the old Territorial nineteen months of statehood and become effective for the next twelve months.

The State Board of Equalization met on Oct. 1, 1908, to make the levy for the year, but Judge Cotteral holds there were no provisions under which they could act. Immediately almost the railway companies—the Santa Fe, Katy and Fort Smith and Western in particular—attack the validity of all the taxes assessed under 1908 act. Judge Cotteral held the act good, however, and the taxes legal excepting for the portion covering the fiscal year of 1908-1909.

The Cotteral decision may affect deeds to property which was sold for the unpaid taxes of 1908-1909, such deeds becoming null and void under the decision. Otherwise the decision affects only the railway companies that fought the validity of the act.

JNO. ALLEN RELEASED ON 4,000 BOND

This morning Jno. Allen, convicted at the recent term of court on a charge of criminal assault, made an appeal bond for $4,000 and was released. His sureties are J. W. Davis, J. R. Bevel and J. H. Spann.

No Sharing Profits.

M. Paul was a grocer in a French town. Rats overran the place and a price of two sous a head was placed upon them by the town council. M. Paul's errand boy, working early and late, managed to slay 90 rats in the cellars and attics of the shop. The boy took them to the town hall, and, returning jubilant to the grocer's, showed M. Paul the nine francs he had gained. The grocer held out his palm. "Hand the money over," he said. "You knew very well those rats were mine, not yours!"

Russian Sables Almost Extinct.

Killing sables in Russia, in entire disregard of future supplies, has resulted in a steady decline in the catch and in some districts has nearly effected the extermination of these valuable fur bearers; the matter has been taken up by the authorities, and no sables will be permitted to be caught during the present season, and the matter of making an absolutely closed period of three years is to be considered without delay.

Was Equal to the Occasion.

The elder Sothorn, the creator of the Lord Dundreary fame, was extremely sensitive to interruptions of any sort. Seeing a man in the act of leaving his box during the delivery of one of the actor's best speeches he shouted out: "Hi, you sir, do you know there is another act?" The offender was equal to the occasion, however; he turned to the actor and answered cheerfully: "Oh, yes; that's why I'm going!"—In Lighter Vein.

No Time Wasted.

Olaf Larson, working in a millinery warehouse, backed into an elevator shaft and fell down five stories with a load of boxes. Horror-stricken, the other employees rushed down the stairs, only to find him picking himself unharmed out of the rubbish. "Ess de boss mad?" he whispered cautiously. "Tal'em Ay had to come down for nails anyway."—Success Magazine.

Our Life's Work.

We are not sent into this world to do anything into which we cannot put our hearts. We have certain work to do for our bread and that is to be done strenuously; other work to do for our delight and that is to be done heartily; neither is to be done by halves or shifts, but with a will; and what is not worth this effort is not to be done at all.—John Ruskin.

Dainty Cuff Links.

Dainty cuff links may be made of crochet buttons, sewing two together, like the parts of a dumb-bell link, with a strong thread loop of the right length, and buttonholing over it. These links will not be lost like many others.

The First Step.

The first step on the ladder that leads to success is the firm determination to succeed; the next is the possession of that moral and physical courage which will enable one to mount up, rung after rung until the top is reached.—Lord Wolseley.

Slurring It Over.

"I'm a poor conversationalist at these highbrow dinner parties. I'm always afraid of mispronouncing some word." "Take a mouthful of spinach before attempting a word that you are uncertain about."

He Knows What Work is.

"You lazy, good-for-nothing thing," said the citizen to the tramp. "Why don't you go to work?" "Work," said the tramp. "Do you imagine that walking from New Orleans to New York twice a year is pleasure?"

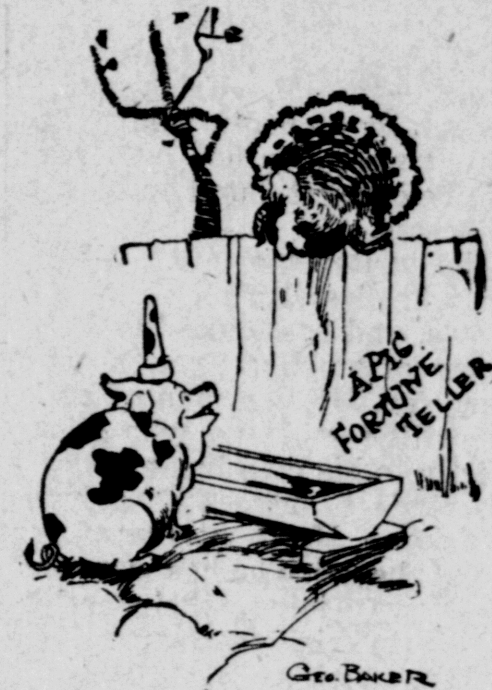

A BIG HELP

Wife—It's all right if you have failed. I have $600 saved up from money that you've given me from time to time.

Husband—That will be a big help. Wife—Help? I guess it will. Why, that will just buy me my summer outfit nicely.

HIS FATE

Fortune Teller—You are soon to travel in China.

Turk—Is that so?

Fortune Teller—Yes; in China, from the kitchen to the dining room.
